If your home is in Cool mode, your cooling system will turn on if the temperature in your home rises above the target. Cool mode is best for the summer months, when there's no chance you'll want your heat system activated. To protect your cooling equipment from possible damage, do not use Cool mode when the outdoor temperature is below 50°F/10°C. If your home is in Heat mode, your heating system will turn on if the temperature in your home falls below the target.
